NYC: 866.499.EDIA INFO@EDIAPRO.COM WWW.EDIAPRO.COM

Stylists that take the Still-Life course by EDIA Cosmetics For Hair will receive training and development as well as presentation skills.

This will help the following:

1) Create more passion for day to day procedure as a salon artist.

Over the years in this industry we've noticed that stylist become burned out. We feel that changing the approach will help to give stylist a fresher take on what they do day in and day out!

2) Transition visuals from mind to actuality

As an artist there are a ton of creations floating in one's mind. To help those creations evolve. The still-life course(s) will enhance the ability to break down the vision systematically thus making the cut feasible and salon viable.

3) Gain longevity in career through proper body positioning whilst cutting

One of the first lessons that should be taught is how to position your body. EDIA feels this is the key to better cutting technique as well as layering and achieving proper graduation.

4) Learn to develop the EYE for balance

This will give you what it takes to produce picture perfect styles. Stylist will learn to look at hair the way a photographer utilizes the lens when shooting. This will give stylist an edge into every major facet of the industry; fashion, media, and editorial.

5) Expand your knowledge of uses for shears

Throughout the years there have been many tools created to assist artist at achieving looks. EDIA will educate you on finding out that the Strictly 7 shear/blade techniques are all you need.

6) Proper consultation that builds trust

The reason that change is hard to achieve for the clientele in or out the salon is one big deal "TRUST". Once stylist have finished an EDIA Still-Life course they will have gained confidence to brand themselves which clients invest into.

7) Universal language for the entire staff

An atmosphere where the whole salon understands what's going on. Enhancing the platform for colorist and stylist to communicate with each other seamlessly to create what we call a "CULTURE". This will heighten client retention for the whole establishment and develop staff empowerment.
